

ABSTRACT

[0031] A method and system for user-defined triggering logic in a hardware description language is described. The method includes reading a file containing
5 user-defined triggering logic described in a hardware description language (HDL), inserting and connecting the triggering logic to a circuit described in HDL, and compiling the HDL description of the circuit to generate a register transfer level (RTL) netlist.